Jesus told a story about a King.

One of the king's servants needed to borrow some money.

The king loaned his servant a lot of money—about a thousand dollars.

When it came time to pay it back, the king said: "Where is my money?" The servant did not have any money to pay the king and he begged the king to give him more time.

The king knew he could sell the servant and all his family and then he would get his money back but he felt sorry for the servant. The king decided to forgive the servant of the debt.

The servant was so happy. It felt great to be forgiven of his debt.

The same servant who had been forgiven went out to find a friend that owed him a small amount of money—about one coin. He found his friend and demanded his money.

The friend said he had no money.

The servant did not forgive his friend like the king had forgiven him. Instead he threw his friend in jail.

The king heard about this and it made him very mad. He called his servant to him and said: "You are a wicked servant. I forgave you but you would not forgive someone else." The king threw the servant in jail.
